Stewart started the Resource Works Society in 2014 with the idea of creating a values-based conversation about the natural-resource economy and make it accessible to all British Columbians. Resource Works is a broad coalition uniting a variety of interests all of which are committed to responsible use of natural resources. The organization has claimed a place among the most influential think tanks in Canada, in social media terms. Stewart has broad experience in academia, business, journalism and the environment. He spent 15 years with the Vancouver Sun as deputy managing editor and business editor. Stewart is a historian with a Master's degree from UBC and is a co-author of a recently published book "The Sea Among Us: The Amazing Strait of Georgia".
